IVAN E. "BUD" FOGLESONG

*Ivan E. "Bud" Foglesong
by A lifelong friend*

On July 21, 2007, the Foglesong family was in the living room when Bud walked into the house badly burned, with skin falling off his arms and his hair red. His son, Kurt, drove him the 10 miles to the Willows Hospital. Bud told Kurt that he had gone into the nearby cabin on the family compound to use the bathroom. When he opened the front door of the cabin, it blew up, knocking him back off of his feet. Bud was air lifted from Willows to the Davis Medical Center in Sacramento (90 miles south.) He died early the next day.

Bud was born on August 4, 1947 and died at age 59. He was a MD-11,

Senior Captain with World Airways and Lieutenant Colonel, USAF (ret). During his 24-year career, he obtained a Master's Degree in National Security Affairs from the Naval Post graduate School in Monterey, CA, while becoming fluent in Arabic and French at the Defense Language Institute. He served as an Air Attaché for Defense Intelligence Agency in Rabat, Morocco. He became Detachment Commander at the U.S. Embassy in Canberra, Australia.

Bud lived with Jan, his wife of 34 years, their kids and two other families (Holzapfel), related through Jan, on the rural Holzapfel family compound. They are and have been taking part in acrimonious financial negotiations, involving the ranch and many millions of dollars. It is not an understatement to say that the Holzapfels hate the Foglesongs. There is bad blood. The compound is an isolated ranch, located one mile down a single lane dirt road, surrounded by pastures and rice fields.

The last ten days of Bud's life were very happy. He was looking forward to retirement in two weeks. He was enjoying a visit with his youngest son, 1st Lieutenant Jed Foglesong,

CITIZENS AGAINST HOMICIDE

Who We Are

The majority of the board members of Citizens Against Homicide have had a family member murdered. They are surviving the devastating loss of a loved one and still suffer the continued emotional trauma of coping with our criminal justice system. We have joined together to create a voice for the survivors and friends of murder victims.

CAH Objectives

- ◇ Assist families through the complicated criminal justice system.
- ◇ Provide trial and courtroom support to victims.
- ◇ Accompany victims to parole hearings in their endeavor to keep the convicted murderer in prison.
- ◇ Provide information on pending crime legislation.

Protecting Your Own Interests

You can't prepare for the event that makes you a victim. You can only react. You need to know how to deal with the subsequent trial, sentencing and unavoidable parole hearings. CAH helps you take action to protect your own interests.

If you have friends or family who may be in need of our assistance, please pass along the information regarding our organization.

Location for Meetings

We hold monthly meetings on the second Sunday of each month at 302 4th Street, San Rafael, CA. The monthly meeting starts at 10:00 a.m. We encourage anyone interested to attend meetings.

LETTERS

Hi,

It's been a while since I have been in touch, but I still read the Newsletter every month! I just wanted to let you know that I can access it on line from now on and save you the postage and office work of sending it.

Please know that you all remain in my prayers and our family is so very grateful for all the help and support you have given in my father's murder...John R. Knight, the only suspect in the case, is living his life as though nothing ever happened. The only comfort is knowing that my father's wishes in regard to the estate have been accomplished. John R. will never gain financially from the murder.

While I will never feel safe or secure with him free, at least I know that the money will by pass him and go to his children, which is what my father wanted. I believe the entire reason for his death is that he told John R. he was making arrangements to change the Trust and Will.

My husband passed away June 14, and I am still in a very confused state. It is my hope that when things calm down and my mind is clear again, I will be able to be more actively involved with Citizens Against Homicide.

Thank you again on behalf of our entire family for all of your support, advice, and assistance. May God richly bless you.

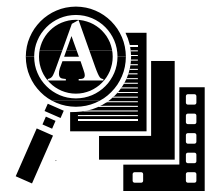

Sincerely,
Kathy Gingerich

Dear Jane,

I received and reviewed the locations for the Brittany Funk billboards. They are spectacular and in the places that I feel are most beneficial. Thank you so much for your help. Hopefully somebody will call in with the information we need to make an arrest and conviction.

Sincerely,
Richard Byrd

WIDOW PLEADS FOR DEATH PENALTY

SHE SAYS HOME IS COLD AND SILENT AFTER HUSBAND, 2 SONS SLAIN IN S.F.

Jaxon Van Derbeken, Chronicle Staff Writer

Friday, June 27, 2008

Danielle Bologna can't go back home.

Just a week ago, her two-story house on a quiet street in San Francisco's Excelsior district was a bustling place, crammed with sports gear and trophies and team portraits, where she and her husband of 21 years were raising their four children.

But in just seconds on Sunday, her family was torn apart: Her husband, Tony, 48, and the couple's sons Michael, 20, and Matthew, 16, were shot and killed as they drove home from a family barbecue in Fairfield.

What is left at home, for Danielle Bologna, is only stark silence.

"I went back there one time," she said Thursday. "It was extremely cold. It was empty. It was the cold, silence."

"It was hard seeing my kids' things all over...my husband's shoes, his work stuff, his clothes, jackets all over."

Danielle Bologna says she wants San Francisco District Attorney Kamala Harris - who has pledged never to seek the death penalty - to understand a little of what she must endure and to seek the death penalty for her family's killer.

"The district attorney really needs to pay attention - she doesn't have kids, she doesn't know what this means," Bologna said.

Prosecutors filed three counts of murder and other charges Thursday against Edwin Ramos, 21, of El Sobrante, an alleged street gang member who police say opened fire on the Bolognas' after their car briefly blocked Ramos from completing a left turn down a narrow street. The charges include special circumstances that could carry the death penalty.

But Harris had long promised to not seek the death penalty in the city. After taking strong criticism for quickly ruling out the death penalty against the gang member ultimately convicted of killing San Francisco police Officer Isaac Espinoza in 2004, Harris has since delegated such decisions to a committee of prosecutors in her office. Capital punishment, however, has yet to be sought.

On Thursday, Harris' office said that no decision has been made on the issue in the Bologna slayings. "This is a horrific tragedy most painfully felt by the family and friends of these innocent victims and shared by our entire city," her office said in a statement.

Danielle Bologna, 47, an educational adviser and coach at Rooftop Elementary, recalled how her husband spent his days coaching sports with his four kids and nights as a supervisor at Draeger's market in San Mateo.

Michael, a standout athlete, was their eldest son at 20 and was attending the College of San Mateo. Matthew, their youngest son, was 16 and attending Lincoln High in San Francisco.

On Sunday, the Bolognas - she, her husband and their three sons and a daughter - joined other relatives and friends for a barbecue in Fairfield. It was the last time the family was together.

Encounter on street

She said the family parted at the gathering because Tony wanted to get some sleep before work. He was driving on Congdon Street only blocks from home, police said, when he encountered a Chrysler 300 as it was trying to get by his car after making a left turn. Tony backed up, but soon shots were fired, fatally wounding him and two sons, who were riding with him in the car.

GOVERNOR ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER

June 20, 2008

Ms. Trina Coffey
Executive Director
California Internet Service Provider Association
1017 L Street
Number 429
Sacramento, California 95814

Dear Ms. Coffey,

Together, we are asking the members of California Internet Service Providers Association to follow the lead of other companies and join the fight against online child pornography. Protecting the safety of our children must be a top priority, not just for government, but also for businesses with the direct power to reduce the ability to conduct illegal activity. Your association stands in a unique position to help.

We applaud three of the largest Internet service providers - Verizon, Time Warner Cable and Sprint – for taking steps to block access to child pornography. It is not enough, however, for only a few Internet service providers to join the fight against online predators. Child pornography is not protected by the First Amendment, and distributing this material is illegal.

The California Internet Service Providers Association is the largest association of Internet providers in the country and we are asking your members to strongly assume the leadership role that status provides. This association can begin by working with its more than 100 members to remove child pornography from existing servers and blocking channels, which include newsgroups, used for distributing this material.

Together, we can make California a better place to live by cracking down on those who exploit children. We look forward to your positive response within 10 days of receipt of this letter.

Sincerely,

USMC, his first grandchild, and Jed's wife, who were visiting from the East.

It was Bud's habit to drive to the southern part of the compound when he was home from his international assignments. In this area is a large shop, a train caboose, a small storage building, a wood shop, gasoline and diesel tanks, hay barn and a duck hunter's cabin. Bud often went into the cabin to use the bathroom.

The timing of this incident was suspicious. Eight months previously, he had been assaulted by Roy Holzapel. Days before his death, Bud had learned that the State of California Deputy Attorney General Clifford Zall was going to file charges on Roy Holzapel for misdemeanor battery the next week. Bud was quite pleased.

The family still wants to know what happened on July 21, 2007. Can anyone help them?

"There was no altercation between this maniac man and my husband," she said. "My husband would never put his own children in jeopardy."

"My husband moved back to let the guy go. Instead, he had blocked my husband and opened fire. There was not a peep or a word out of my husband's mouth."

With the help of a tip from a man arrested after the slayings, police quickly made an arrest of a member of a notoriously violent street gang, MS-13.

"This animal," Danielle Bologna said. "I just feel that I can't even give him a name - who can just drive around looking for victims to take out. He has no conscience. Just to kill people when you feel like it?"

Widow's plea to D.A.

Danielle Bologna said the district attorney needs to realize the enormity of the crime in this case.

"Seeking the death penalty, this will make a statement so people won't just kill families for no reason," said Bologna, who is left to raise a son and daughter on her own. "they have the power to stop this. They have to stop with the excuses - this is not her family, this is my family."

Violence in the city, Bologna said, "has gone too far. Nothing is getting done. Why did we put her here, if she is not going to stop this? This is huge. I have lost a husband and two kids."

Danielle Bologna thanked the police for their efforts. She says she prays that justice will be done. "I'm going to let the courts do their job. I'm going to let the police officers, who have been fabulous, do their job. I just feel the district attorney needs to do her job."

She said she is still stunned by what happened.

'A senseless crime'

"All I can tell you - this was a senseless crime. I never in a million years thought I would have to live this life and lose my family."

"To be so senseless, to have people on the streets, shooting people. We have to take our city back - this shouldn't happen. We all need to stick together. To be strong against guns, we need to get those off the streets."

"I just feel like, we are not getting it. They are winning. These criminals are winning. I'm the one who has got to live this. But this is not just about me. It is about other people being hurt. This was my turn to have lost a beautiful husband and two beautiful kids."

"I'm never going to have somebody to love and kiss me and say 'I love you' in that way. That is the pain I'm talking about," she said sobbing. "I'm going to miss the man who kisses me and says 'I love you' and good night."

Tony Bologna's sister, Lorraine Kennedy, said the family spent Thursday at a mortuary.

"We are having to pick out caskets for a husband and two sons - no family should ever, ever have to do this, have to go through this pain," she said. "It is unbearable."

"Every morning, I wake up and I pray this has been a bad dream. I wake up and know this is reality. It sickens me."

Her husband, Frank Kennedy, said the gang members responsible for Bologna's death must be dealt with to prevent further bloodshed. "We can't stand for this. This is a real American tragedy, that this has happened to this family."

WHEN A CITY DECIDES TO MAKE ITSELF A SANCTUARY FOR CRIMINALS, THIS IS THE RESULT. YOU CAN THANK DISTRICT ATTORNEY KAMALA HARRIS AND THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

PAROLES....

My sister Beatrice Williams was murdered in 1984 by Johnnie Lee Spruill.

What she thought to be a normal relationship was soon learned to be the biggest mistake of her life. My sister was not aware of Johnnie Spruill's violent past until it was too late. He was very abusive and stalked her for months prior to her untimely death.

On March 1, 1984, she decided to spend some time with a very close friend at a night club (something she had not done in months due to Spruill's stalking her) and that is when he caught her unprotected and ran out of the club and killed her in front of numerous witnesses. He came within inches of decapitating her.

Spruill was apprehended a few miles from the scene. During the trial numerous past associates of Spruill testified to his violent past. He was given the death sentence and the conviction was upheld through 3 appeals.

In August 2004, we received word that his death sentence was overturned by the NC Supreme Court to life with the possibility of parole! Now we must attend a parole hearing every year to keep this monster behind bars. We are desperate for letters to the parole board. His hearing is early every December.
